Cornwall and Devon MPs Work Together to Tackle the Future of the Tamar Crossings

oday, Anna Gelderd, MP for South East Cornwall, and Fred Thomas, MP for Plymouth Moor View, met with the Minister for the Future of Roads at the Department for Transport to discuss the Tamar Crossings. This meeting focused on the essential role of the Tamar Bridge and Torpoint Ferry in connecting Cornwall and Devon, and the urgent need for government support to secure long-term funding and accessibility for these vital crossings, which are central to local communities and the economy.

Anna Gelderd MP highlighted the importance of government involvement, noting the challenges posed by the current and proposed toll increases, stressing the significant impact on residents who rely on these links daily to access employment, education, and healthcare services.

Following the discussion, Anna Gelderd MP commented:

Anna Gelderd MP and Fred Thomas MP Meet with Roads Minister to Address Tamar Crossings' Future

The Tamar Bridge and Torpoint Ferry are lifelines for our communities, linking South East Cornwall with the rest of the country. I'm committed to finding a solution that keeps these crossings accessible, reliable, and fit for the future. I want to ensure existing services are maintained and that local infrastructure that works for locals. I'll continue to fight for our residents and voice your concerns."

The meeting marked an important step in advocating for long-term solutions that will benefit the local residents, businesses and the wider economy, including the crucial tourism industry that the South West benefits greatly from.

know many residents in Plymouth rely on the Tamar Crossings. Labour is committed to keeping transport accessible and sustainable. We're working together to find the right balance between maintaining current services and protecting residents from future toll rises.

Advocating South East Cornwall's views on the Tamar Crossings was Anna's first action after being elected, and she remains dedicated to finding a sustainable solution that maintains services, works for local residents and businesses, and benefits the local economy. Fred Thomas MP also continues to advocate for a solution that benefits local residents and boosts the economy

From the Mayor of Saltash t was so lovely to see so many people at the Wesley Church and on Fore St for Remembrance Sunday, and then again on Armistice Day at 11am on 11 November. What really impressed me that there were so many young people in attendance wearing poppies and holding Rosemary for Remembrance. I asked two little boys. who were with their dad, why they were wearing poppies, and they both knew quite knowledgeably what they represented. I found it all quite emotional especial when the two new benches were blessed in St Nicholas and St Faith with all the missing names of those who died in conflict from Saltash were at long last finally given their recognition. With a tear in my eye, I lay a wreath from us all in Saltash on the 06.35am Poppy train to Paddington for the service remembrance in London. We will remember them.

have my decorations up yet, but I love the lights, the atmosphere, carols, children's nativity and Christmas pud! However, this year especially, when finances are tough for many people, and with the growing population of homeless people, its good to try and give a little back, maybe to our local foodbank or the Community Kitchen, also to our Baptist and Wesley Church who do great work for the local homeless, and Christmas lunch for those alone this year. Saltash Town Council is really busy, finalising our precept (budgets) for 2025/26 in line with our business, and neighbourhood plans. We are also eagerly waiting to see if our funding application has been successful for the new play park and sensory garden on Jubilee green. We hope that this will be the start of many projects on the Waterside area that the Town Council can Lease from Cornwall Council to make it a welcoming and lovely area for residents and visitors to enjoy.

We are also looking to find ways of enhancing Fore St with planters, seating. more wayfinding and possibly markets early Spring next year. Of course, we are also looking to finalise taking over our beloved Victoria Gardens, which is going to take a lot of work from our Service Delivery Team, who do an amazing job around our town.

The Saltash Health Action Group, which I chair, are at long last seeing some light at the end of the tunnel. Talks with Derriford Hospital, also NHS Integrated Care East Cornwall, with providing more services in Saltash, like phlebotomy, to save us going over the bridge for a blood test, Virtual nursing care, as everyone knows you recover better at home, and other services we may be able to provide in our home town.

I love meeting you all, and our young people in the schools, I can't wait to start helping with the lantern making for our Christmas Festival.

Please continue to say hello when I'm out and about Warmest Regards to you all Cllr Julia Peggs Mayor of Saltash 2024-25

One name was previously omitted as he was missing, having been taken as prisoner of war by the Japanese and his wife did not want his name included at the time as she hoped he might still be alive, sadly this was not so. Other names were omitted as they died from war related causes after the memorials were completed. Former R.N./R.M. Commando Barry Brooking became aware of the missing names and spent some years urging the Town Council to remedy the omissions. He eventually succeeded and was delighted to be present for the short blessing of the granite benches. He said afterwards 'Mission Accomplished'. time last year, we were in the throws of putting together Saltash Town Council's business plan. I was delighted that this was ratified at the meeting of full council in March. A significant moment as the business plan is the first of its kind for Saltash Town Council as far as we can tell.

The business plan is for the three-year period April 2024 to March 2027 and is published on the Saltash Town Council website. In addition the website also provides regular updates on how it's progressing i.e. are we doing what we said we do and outlining any changes we've made. The job of monitoring the business plan is primarily the responsibility of the Town Vision Sub-Committee, which I'm pleased to Chair. In addition, we

John Noakes One of Life's True Gentlemen

We recently celebrated the 100th birthday of resident, John Noakes with family, friends, residents, and Saltash Mayor and Consort Julia and Geoff Peggs. As the oldest surviving veteran of the 13 18th Royal Hussars, John was visited by one of its current officers. Merlin, who presented a book about the regiment. John joined the 13 18th following the end of World War II when his Renaissance regiment disbanded. John is a lively asset to Abbeyfield Saltash, he enjoys regaling stories from his past. John also has the greatest sense of humour and is one of life's true gentlemen.

ECPCN is the network that covers the seven Practices Oak Tree, Old Bridge, Port View, Quay Lane, Rame Group, Rosedean and Saltash Health Centre. We want to make sure our primary care system works for you and you understand the changes and improvements that are being made nationally to the NHS. It is undoubtedly a challenging time and we are working hard to ensure the right services are there for you.

We have recently created a GP clinical hub at Liskeard Hospital (closely followed by St Barnabus at Saltash) for single aliment treatments ready for the winter season. All our Practice staff are trained to ensure you get the right service at the right time. This means that Practice teams may ask you about your condition and get you to a healthcare professional that is best placed to help you, which could include GPs, Nurses, Physiotherapists and Care navigators amongst others.

We are working with our Patient Participation Group on these initiatives and will provide more information and updates in future editions.

Chamber Chairman Peter Rvland Keeping us Updated

here is a lot going on in my world at the present time, and finding the time to manage it all is a challenge many of you can probably relate to, especially with Christmas just weeks away. One small blessing was that we didn't have our monthly Chamber meeting in November, as I had to postpone it due to the fact that many of us who would have attended needed to be at another The meeting. other meeting, however, enabled funding to be secured for Saltash Town Team, so it was time well spent. Over the past few weeks, however, I have made the time speak with various Chamber members, who are eagerly looking forward to the Festival Christmas on Saturday 7th December. Although the Festival is organised under the umbrella of the Chamber, the real credit two Chamber to goes members, Hilary Frank and Aaron Monk. I would like to take this opportunity to thank them both for their tremendous effort to ensure the day is enjoyable for everyone. Arrangements start with fundraising, as costs for aspects like road closures, entertainment and fireworks quickly add up. Without external funding, the Chamber simply couldn't afford to run the event as we do not have the financial resource to fund it. We are grateful to Saltash Town Council for their generous financial support. and to Saltash Scrapstore for sponsoring the Lantern Parade again this year. However, we are always in need of more sponsors, public donations and support through raffle ticket sales. From the crowds on Fore Street, it is clear the event is greatly loved - please help us to keep it going.

In addition to chairing the Chamber, I am also Chair of Saltash Town Team, a forum comprising Town and Councillors Cornwall alongside representatives from Community Enterprises Chamber of and the Commerce. Together, we are working to enhance the shopping experience in and around Fore Street. We have been steadily progressing with ideas I have mentioned here before, and early in the New Year you will see some of them take shape. Working collaboratively with forum members, a great deal of my time has been spent on moving these plans forward. I and recent discussions with town centre retailers have brought fresh some suggestions. Please do get in contact with me if you have constructive thoughts on shopping improving the experience on Fore Street. Furthermore, Town Team meetings are open to the public should you wish to attend.

Another major focus that has taken a lot of time recently has been addressing financial challenges at Community Enterprises, where I am a director. Many of you will have seen our SOS campaign to raise funds. We rely on grants and donations to fund the activities we run, and while we have resolved immediate issues, rising costs for heating, lighting, refrigeration, rent and rates remain a constant strain .We are always looking for new sources of funding, and rely heavily on our volunteers. So every donation of time or money helps, and we are deeply grateful for any and all support

Finally, may I wish you a Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year, and remind you of these key dates: 1. Christmas Festival in Fore Street: 7th December public car parks: Saturday 7th and 14th, and Monday 23rd December

2. Free parking in Saltash am always open to new ideas. Memory Box

The Festival of Nine Lessons and Carols traditionally was first formally staged at Truro Cathedral and devised by Right Rev. Edward White Benson (at that time Bishop of Truro) on December 24th 1880 - and has been traditionally celebrated on or near Christmas Eve.

It is the story of the fall of humanity, the promise of the Messiah and the birth of Jesus and told in nine short bible readings (lessons) from prophetic works and Gospels of Genesis and interspersed with singing of carols, hymns and choir anthems.

In South East Cornwall, we have a strong tradition of community support, and there are initiatives this season to make it easy to get involved. Many local food banks are running "reverse advent calendars" - instead of taking something out each day, we add an item to be donated. These donations directly support local significant and leading role.

Reflecting, As a child, I well remember, together, with my school friends on cold winter evenings nearing Christmas going 'Carol Singing' in our modest of means neighbourhood, where kind neighbours listened to us singing 'Come all ye Faithful' and Away in a Manger' and kindly giving us one penny to share as a reward (or maybe it was for us to go away!). However, we remembered those residents that were so generous and went back the following year hoping for tuppence!

John and I plan to attend the Festival of Nine Lessons and Carols at St Stephens Church, and as well as enjoying the readings, will sing with gusto the lovely carols, but will not expect any pennies as a reward on this occasion!

Matthew Lindeyer, a longtime Saltash resident who recently retired from the Roval Navy, was elected as Chair.

Matthew paid tribute to outgoing Chair Barbara May, acknowledging her leadership through the challenges of Covid, the closure of the Minor Injuries Unit, and NHS changes. He highlighted the charity's renewed focus on patient support, community engagement, and healthcare innovation, aligning with the nationwide drive to deliver care closer to home.

The charity's renaming reflects this shift, marking a move away from traditional fundraising towards advocacy and the development of healthcare initiatives. Matthew expressed his commitment to ensuring the charity continues to add value to the community and

Politics is all About Making Choices

For the past eight years, I have chosen to serve South East Cornwall as a Liberal Democrat Councillor and Parliamentary Candidate.

of these roles: talking to Lepeople on the doorstep, helping with individual pieces of casework, standing up for my community, and campaigning for changes to national policies. I am particularly proud of raising the profile of the issues that matter most to local residents: clean, affordable energy: affordable housing: safety on the A38; and the cost of the Tamar Tolls.

However, these achievements have come at a cost. A thousand individual decisions to attend meetings or spend time campaigning have meant sacrificing precious time with my family. I even cut short a family holiday in Cumbria to lead a protest march across the Tamar Bridge! When my wife was offered a job as headteacher of a special school in Nottinghamshire, we lived apart for two years so that I could continue working for the community here in Cornwall.

On 22nd May, Rishi Sunak made two very questionable choices: first, he stepped outside without an umbrella; then he called the election that resulted in a landslide Labour victory.

On that same day, my wife was offered a job running a special school back in Cornwall.

Thave relished every part Had I won the election, we would have faced living apart once again- a sacrifice we were willing to make if it meant I could serve South East

> Cornwall in Parliament. But the voters made a different choice. They backed a Labour candidate who Four promised 'change.' months later, there is still no sign of new funding for the Tamar Crossings or the 'fair deal' promised for Cornwall Council. Whenever our MP has been asked to choose between doing what's right for Cornwall or following Labour party orders, she has chosen her party first.

Now my wife has been offered an even more senior role in education, based in London. This time, I have decided to put family first and move there with her.

This means I will not stand for re-election to Cornwall Council next May, and I will shortly step down as the Leader of the Liberal Democrat Group.

I respect the choices that others have made, even when I could see the harm the consequences might cause to the community I love. I offer my sincere apologies to those who may feel I am letting them down with this choice. but I hope they can understand and respect my decision.

Christmas is Coming!

As part of Christians Against Poverty (CAP), it won't surprise you that, as Christians, we love Christmas! However, winter and Christmas itself can be really challenging for many.

Saltash Old Cornwall Society

their recent meeting, the Saltash Old Cornwall Society (SOCS) were suitably entertained by the lecture given by their President, Sue Hooper MBE, when she delivered a very interesting and informative talk about the Doyenne of British pianists the late Dame Moura Lympany. Dame Moura was born in Saltash on August 16th 1916 during the Great War, when Moura's Mother went into labour on her way to Cornwall to visit Moura's grandmother who lived in Newquay.

Sue echoed that it was a most fortunate event for Saltash that Moura was born in the town rather than Newquay where her birth place was planned.

Sue added that Saltash indeed, boasted other famous women such as Mary Newman the 16th Century first wife of Sir Francis Drake and Ann Glanville the famous Saltash and national celebrity Victorian rower - plus more recently the 20th Century Moura Lympany.

The Society heard that when Sue was Mayor of Saltash in 1991, she had the privilege and pleasure of inviting and hosting a visit to Saltash that Moura made. It was thanks to Sue's friend, concert manager, the late 'Mr Music Man' the founding member of the Plymouth Music Trust, who had invited Sue and her husband John to his concert which was staged at the Plymouth Guildhall conversation with Charles and Moura. Sue invited her to perform in Saltash to benefit Cancer Charities, which was close to Moura's heart. Moura graciously accepted the invitation and performed free of charge to an enthusiastic audience at the Saltash Wesley Church on November 19th 1991.

A few days before the concert Sue and John had located the address in Saltash of Moura's birth and as a special surprise took her there, moreover to the room of her birth.

At the concert recital, Moura executed with great aplomb, her remarkable virtuoso piano skills to a capacity audience, giving a breath-taking recital of Chopin's works, for which she received a well-deserved standing ovation. The concert £1,500 raised Cancer including charities, Leukaemia in Children Trust.

Sue further conveyed how appreciative she was to have negotiated the free loan and conveyance of the Steinway Piano from the Plymouth Theatre Royal and further, free accommodation for Moura by the Plymouth Copthorne Hotel management. Sue enthused that both Establishments were very generous and charitable.

At the lecture, members learned that Moura had made her professional debut on the 8th August 1929 at the Royal Hall, Harrogate, and since that time had become a world-famous pianist and an honoured name in music through her concerts, recordings, television and radio

At the age of twelve Moura appeared as soloist in the Mendelssohn G Minor Concerto under the baton of Basil Cameron; which was followed by a scholarship to the Royal Academy of Music.

At a concert conducted by Sir Adrian Boult, Moura played in Paris immediately after the Liberation, when at night gunfire could be heard around the City. Moura was one of the first foreign pianists to tour the Soviet Union after WW2.

Moura Lympany had a remarkable repertoire, playing over sixty concertos and a vast range of piano music from Scarlatti to Schoenberg. She made recordings of three concertos by Rachmaninov as well as 24 Preludes and the complete set of Waltzes, Preludes and Nocturnes of Chopin.

As a fellow of the Royal Academy of Music, Moura was made a Dame in 1992 following many other honours from the UK and other parts of Europe.

Moura travelled the World delivering recitals and Concerto performances, many in aid of Cancer Charities. (In her lifetime. Moura had two mastectomies).

Dame Moura Lympany passed away in France on March 28th 2005 at the age of 88. Dame Moura was a valued honorary member of the Steinway Artist family for over 56 years.

Through her performances and her soughtrecordings, after she influenced more young pianists and piano aficionados than even she may have realised. Moura will be remembered in Saltash as a unique virtuoso and legend, who was one of the few pianists to play over 40 Concertos; and performed in public for over 75 years. Moura was the honorary

Saltash Tunnel Switch-off National Highways has postponed the start of upgrades to the Saltash tunnel. Construction will now begin early next year, with wo new play areas have opened in Saltash allowing young children up to 12 years of age to have fun, socialise, enjoy the outdoors and stay fit. Work to regenerate both Honeysuckle Way and Grassmere Way play areas on Pillmere housing estate has been completed through the installation of a wide range of new equipment.

Grassmere, the larger of the two sites provides equipment for children up to 12 years of age including swings, one for use by children with special needs, two tower climbing frames with slides, adventure trail and traverse wall. The site also benefits from wet pour safety surfacing allowing the facility to be used all year round.

Honeysuckle Way, aimed for use by children aged 7 and under has a new tower climbing frame with slide, swings, spring riders and playboards. Both areas are enclosed for safety and provide picnic benches for families to use and enjoy

The project has been possible through £75,000 of grant funding awarded from Cornwall Council's Community Infrastructure Levy (CIL) fund with a further £20K of funding being allocated by Saltash Town Council.

Saltash Town Council, who established a working group who oversaw the project, issued a statement, "We are delighted with the new play areas which have really improved play provision on Pillmere, an area of Saltash that is home to many families, some of whom have been travelling substantial distances to use alternative facilities. We really appreciate the support of Cornwall Council's CIL funding to allow this project to proceed. Through Saltash Town Council, we will be promoting and maintaining the new facilities."

The ribbon was cut on the Grassmere Way site on Wednesday 30th October by Mayor of Saltash Councillor Julia Peggs marking the start of a new chapter for children on Pillmere.

Both play areas were designed following extensive community consultation with residents of Pillmere last September whose priorities have been incorporated into the final designs. Over 100 surveys were completed demonstrating both a need and enthusiasm for new facilities. The survey responses indicated that two thirds of children would use the new play areas either daily or several times a week

Creative Play, an experienced and skilled contractor were selected to carry out the works following a tender process. They designed both play areas on the of the community back feedback, completed the works on time and to budget and with the minimal of inconvenience to local residents. Simon Turvey, Area Sales Manager for Creative Play said, "We are delighted to have worked with Saltash Town Council on this project and to have made such a difference to children's lives on Pillmere. By transforming these areas from tired spaces into fantastic play areas, we have created an opportunity for children to have fun, socialise and develop important skills such as coordination and balance." The Chairman of Pillmere Community Association Iain Gdanitz who worked in partnership with Saltash Town Council on this project and who along with colleagues and councillors, delivered over 600 leaflets to houses across Pillmere said, "It's really exciting that this project has now come to fruition and that young children and their carers have exciting and smart new play areas to use providing hours of free fun and exercise." Olly Monk, Cornwall Council cabinet portfolio holder for housing and planning, said: 'The Community Infrastructure Levy allows us to raise funds from new developments and pass this on to community projects making a real difference. raid in the Budget, together with the decimation of the farming industry, which will likely lead to higher food prices and an increased carbon footprint on foodstuffs being imported, have all been well documented, so no need for me to comment further.

What I do find misleading, however, is the claim that a working person will pay no more in taxation. Not directly, perhaps, but indirectly for sure. It is reported that a wellknown supermarket will be paying an additional £73 million per annum in National Insurance contributions Where will that money likely come from? You've guessed it, higher prices at the checkout, affecting every working person in addition to struggling families and hardpressed pensioners. On a more positive note.

Just Thinking Aloud

nce upon a time (well, nearly four years ago) I began to think about making more use of buses locally, and consequently less use of my car. I'd like to claim that I did so for unselfishly principled reasons, but that would be an almighty fib. Anyway, on my 80th birthday I sold the car and entered wholeheartedly into the world of public transport, a taxi or two with the estimable MB, and kind friends who offer me lifts. It works!

Not only do I save money, but I also come across new friends - which is what one does when sitting at the stop outside our Co-op waiting for the no.2 which may or may not be on time. Actually, I don't live all that far from that stop. The ride itself used to take a maximum of five minutes, followed by a downhill walk of another five. Magic! I'm not lazy. It's just that "Speedy" is no longer my middle name.

Council Support Initiative for Homeless in the Town

At the Full Town Council meeting held on 3rd October the Town Council pledged its support for a new initiative to help homeless people in the town.

The initiative is the idea of Saltash Wesley Methodist Church and Saltash Baptist Church who support homeless people daily by providing food, clothing and washing facilities. The two churches provide a crucial link between those experiencing homelessness and Cornwall Council and St Petrocs, a homeless charity.

The two organisations are seeking to provide temporary housing in the town which will be run by a homeless organisation and offer a safe, warm place to stay and counselling and advise whilst a permanent home is sought.

Mayor of Saltash Councillor Julia Peggs said "Whilst this is a long term ambition the Town Council are pleased to support the initiative and would welcome a local service in the town for those experiencing homelessness.

Saltash man acclaimed as 'one of the brightest men and bravest generals that Cornwall has produced' was commemorated 125 years after he fell in battle. The commemoration took place by the memorial erected to him in Saltash and of the hundred or so present many represented the family members and office holders present in 1901 when the column in memorial to Major General Sir William Penn Symons KCB was unveiled in Victoria Gardens at the top of Fore Street.

The event was organised by ex Royal Marine Barry Brooking with Miss Beverly Gordon and Councillor John Brady. Mr Brooking gave an outline of General Penn Symons background and army career. His family had lived at Hatt House near Saltash over many centuries and he was related to William Penn the founder of Pennsvlvania. His father served as Recorder of Saltash. William, or 'Uncle Penn' as his family affectionately remembered him, opted for a military career and served throughout the world over thirty-six years.

He was on active service in the Zulu wars as featured in the classic movie 'Zulu' and subsequently in the Second Boer War. It was in one of the opening battles of that war at Talana Hill that, while riding to the front line to assess the situation, he fell victim to a Boer sniper. He died three days later in hospital as prisoner of war, accorded full military honours by the Boers who sent a message of commiseration to his widow. Britain was shocked at the first loss in this war of such a senior and well admired officer. It was said that a low moan ran around the House of Commons at the announcement of his death and his

The following Sunday Mr Brooking read the eulogy to Major General Penn Symons in Botus Fleming church, the parish church where his family had worshipped over four centuries, where his widow is buried and where there is a memorial window to him.

At the conclusion of his eulogy Mr Brooking proclaimed what was a favourite saying of General Penn Symons, 'Good luck have thou with thine honour - ride on!'
